

Rev. Dr. W. H. Hincks

WELFARE WORK WAS PROMINENT

Veteran clergyman of the United Church of Canada and engaged in the ministry for 65 years, Rev. Dr. William H. Hincks of 81 Spadina Rd. died yesterday in the Toronto General Hospital after a brief illness. He was 85.

During his ministry he was deeply concerned with the religious teaching of children, did outstanding work in the rehabilitation of prisoners, was interested in other welfare work, and was one of those chiefly instrumental in the founding of the Western Hospital here and the enlarging of the Toronto General Hospital.

Rev. W. H. Hincks.

It was said of Dr. Hincks that he baptized more babies, performed the marriage ceremony for more couples, and conducted the funeral services for more parishioners than any other clergyman in Canada. Shortly before his death, he had completed his autobiography, "Eighty-five Years Young."

Born in London, Eng., he came to Canada with his parents when he was 10. He was educated in Toronto and graduated in law and the ministry, taking both degrees at Victoria College. He entered the Methodist ministry as a country clergyman and had charges at Kirkton, Stratford, St. Mary's, Preston and Owen Sound.

For a 35-year period, commencing in 1894, he was pastor of the following Toronto Methodist (later United) churches: Queen Street (now the Church of All Nations), Central, Trinity, Broadway Tabernacle, St. Paul's, Dunn Avenue, and High Park. After his retirement, he became minister of the Wesley United Church, Vancouver, and occupied the pulpit of St. Paul's Church, Toronto, during last summer.

During his ministry, he occupied many important posts. He was also an outstanding champion of the clarification of marriage laws. He pioneered the development of the graded Sunday school, and while minister at High Park United Church saw the building of the largest Sunday school of the United Church of Canada up to that time.

His wife died in 1925. He is survived by an only son, Dr. Clarence M. Hincks. The funeral service will be conducted at St. Paul's United Church, Avenue Rd., tomorrow afternoon by Dr. W. Harold Young, assisted by Dr. J. R. P. Selater, Moderator of the United Church of Canada, and Dr. Thomas Neal. The late Dr. Hincks will lie in state at the church from noon tomorrow until the service at 2.30. A memorial service will be conducted at St. Paul's Church next Sunday morning.

Threatening Civil Servant Told He's No Longer Employed

Notice that he has been dismissed from the Ontario Civil Service has been sent to Ernest Lawrie, Provincial Treasury employee, in line with the recommendation of the Royal Commission which investigated charges made by Lawrie against certain departmental officials.

Shortly after tabling the commission's findings, which also recommended that Mrs. Marie Thompson, a fellow employee, be given a second chance, Premier George Drew told the Legislature yesterday of the commission's report and the recommendations made to the Government.

"This man made a perfectly bald threat that unless he received a raise in pay he would blow the lid off," the Premier said. "I believe those were his words. His charges have been found to be utterly without substantiation. In fairness to the civil service as a whole, such conduct on the part of a civil servant is utterly unknown. We, as a Government, and the people of Ontario have civil servants in this Province of which we have every reason to be proud. This man Lawrie was guilty of conduct which would destroy the effectiveness of the civil service if it were forgiven."

Mrs. Thompson, the commission found, was influenced by Lawrie and it recommended that she be retained in some department of Government outside the Parliament Buildings, provided she agreed to comply with the provisions of the Public Service Act. Her previous good work in the corporations tax branch was mentioned.

Boundless energy and a vocabulary which misses the word "fatigue" are likely to be the predominating memories of the Toronto visit of the Athlones—particularly in the case of Princess Alice—treasured by those who have followed the viceregal party on rounds of war plants, schools, hospitals and servicemen's organizations.

Yesterday a new high in admiration was reached by those who watched the Earl and his lady make a 105-minute tour of the John Inglis plant.

Princess Alice, with quick-paced steps, brimming enthusiasm, sparkling eyes, took a genuine interest in the workers who make the tools of war.

See Bren Gun Made.

She was conducted about the plant by Walter McLachlan, director of manufacturing, and it is just as well that Mr. McLachlan knew a thing or two about his plant.

"Princess Alice is keenly interested," he exclaimed, when asked about her comments. He ran a handkerchief across his forehead. "When you explain something to her she nods quickly and she's got it."

The Athlones started at the front of a Bren gun, which is to say they saw a 120-pound chunk of steel and watched it through all its stages until it emerged a 22-pound, ready-to-fire weapon.

Interest Unflagging.

Because of the roar of the machines, Princess Alice's comments could not be overheard, but her interest never flagged, Mr. McLachlan said. She was going as strong at the finish as at the start.

AN OUTSIDER LOOKS AT THE INSIDE OF EATON'S

by Ken MacTaggart
Globe and Mail Staff Writer

EATON'S GIRLS' CLUB

With the objective of fitting its members to become better citizens physically, mentally and culturally — even though some of the things they learn become even more valuable after they leave EATON'S — there's a club inside EATON'S which is one of the biggest private organizations of its kind in this country.

The Eaton Girls' Club came into existence nearly 25 years ago. Today it has more than a thousand active members, most of them enrolled in many more than one of its dozens of training courses or recreation projects. Hundreds more, who are not regular members, benefit from its existence by casual visits. And its big clubrooms, which would be envied by many a club with costly dues and fees, is home to even other hundreds who meet there for social gatherings, bridal showers, bridge parties and all such things that are important to girls.

Club Members Elect Their Own Officers

To attempt to define what this club provides would read like the curriculum of a girls' school. Made possible by EATON'S, it is self-administrative, with the girls electing their executive. The clubrooms are located on Yonge Street, close to the store, and fill four floors of a huge building that houses a big swimming pool, a cafeteria, dance rooms, gymnasia, basketball courts, lounge rooms, sewing rooms, several classrooms — and lots of big, old-fashioned fireplaces.

Its activities are divided into two major groups: Athletic and educational or vocational. A dozen instructors are devoted to the work. Most of the girls participate in both phases of its activity, as, for example, taking swimming lessons, playing badminton, and studying dancing and music. But a great many are enrolled in handicraft courses and two instructors devote a good part of their time to sewing classes alone, an evidence of the importance the club plays in the everyday life of the girls.

Here is a partial program of the recreational or athletic phase, gymnastics, which avoid heavy "apparatus" work and stresses rhythmic exercises; dancing, including ballet, too, creative ballroom, tap and folk classes; swimming (where a girl each year learn this important art); diving and lifesaving; archery, basketball, badminton, bowling, fencing. These are divided into at least two grades, beginners and advanced; dancing is divided into junior, intermediate and senior classes. The universality of the appeal to EATON girls is best reflected in the fact that the swimming club has two grandmothers as members and both have appeared at exhibitions staged by the ornamental team. (Many of the club members qualify each year for the Royal Lifesaving Society Diploma.)

In Phase Two, the girls study sewing (including how to fit, cut, etc.); they stage annual fashion shows which EATON executives attend because of the originality and smartness; they make costume jewellery, study cooking, including nutrition and such allied arts as how to set a table. They belong to a better-speaking club which teaches expression, word choice, demeanor, etc. Or they join the Book Club which holds weekly discussions and provides a special selection of new books, apart, of course, from the big library which is kept stocked in the club for everyone. And there is a unique music appreciation group, with a marvelous library of recordings, to which artists speak, regularly, and which gives a girl confidence in her ability to hold her own in any gathering. Among other things, there is a social service group, which used to do things like make layettes but is now almost full time on war work.

Other Practical Advantages

Apart from the effect of such a program on the life of a girl while she is in EATON'S, one of the things EATON'S is proudest of is how it fits her to be a better wife and mother some day. In handicrafts she learns how to teach children to make little things out of odds and ends; how to make pretty beads, little sewing bags, etc. She learns about family nutrition, how to economize on food, how to make a little apartment look gracious, how to make her own and children's clothing.

Which is what I meant in that first sentence about some of the things even becoming more valuable when the girl leaves EATON'S. It sounds almost anomalous, doesn't it?

But it isn't anomalous. As has been said before in stories about EATON'S in this space, one of the most inspiring things about this store is its vision. What makes Canada greater, makes EATON'S greater. The contribution of each of us, individual or organization, will add in achieving that purpose — and make happier homes.

Returning to the Canadian Bank of Commerce in Toronto, he was transferred to San Francisco in 1922. He went with the Sun Life Assurance Co. in 1925, and at the time of his retirement was chief of the policy loans department in Montreal.

As a constable, Evans appeared before the Royal Commission and succeeded in securing the first charter from the provincial government for the forming of an association not affiliated with unions. "The price is always the same," says Ethel Bakody (right) her enclosed heated stand on the Hamilton market, selling green onions at 25 cents for bunches of 2's and 3's and 15 cents for singles. Green onions were 5 cents a bunch. Stand is supplied by truck farm near Burlington run by Miss Bakody; her sister, Mrs. Helen Simpson (left), and another sister.

Hamilton Market Prices Change Little in Year

HAMILTON, Jan. 11 (Special).—The largest outdoor market in Canada improved, on Saturday, that the middleman is mostly responsible for the extreme rise in the price of home-grown vegetables. Prices on the market were in keeping with what they were this time last year and the year before. Here, in the heart of the city, housewives were buying four-pound cabbages for 25c, carrots for 25c a 6-quart basket, celery, 25c for bunches of 2's and 3's and 15c single, and green onions for 5c a bunch.

"The price is always the same in the Hamilton market," said Miss Ethel Bakody, a highly-successful market gardener from Burlington. "We're selling at prices less than they're asking wholesale in Toronto."

Toronto wholesalers are now asking $9 a crate for celery they bought for $4 a crate, in Burlington, before Christmas.

It's plain to see that if housewives came to the markets for their home-grown vegetables, they would defeat the plans of the food speculators and perhaps cause some of them to take a loss. Despite one of the coldest days of the year, the early morning market here was crowded yesterday. Quantity was low, however, and as the stocks disappeared the rush died off in the early afternoon. Other prices: Vegetables — Chinese lettuce leaf, 15c to 25c; cauliflower, each, 25c to 60c; mushrooms, lb., 50c to 60c; white marrowfat beans, red kidney beans and baby lima beans, pint, 25c; navy beans, pint, 20c; onions, 6-quart, 40c to 50c.

Apples — Spies, 6-quart baskets, 50c to 75c; greenings, 6-quart baskets, 50c.

two and a half years. The first year I was married I gained 10 pounds. The second year our baby arrived and I was left with an additional 10 pounds, which makes me 20 pounds heavier than I was when I walked down the aisle to promise to love and obey.

"It would be difficult for me to tell you the effect this has had on me. I have lost interest in clothes. I feel self-conscious, whereas I was a person who liked people and social functions. My husband is nice but looks a little bewildered and says, 'Why don't you lose it?'"

What a smart little lady to want to get rid of the personality and beauty handicap without delay! You can lose weight no matter how long you have had it, but it is wise to go after those 10 or 15 or 20 pounds soon after they appear. In the first place, if you have gained 20 pounds this rapidly, you will probably have another five or 10 before long. Then, too, it is easier to lose without resulting lines or flabbiness when you do not delay. In this instance the little lady will have to count calories as well as exercise, but there are several exercises which will, as she says, "do many things."

This is one: Lie on the floor on your back with your legs straight and your arms on the floor, extend-and grateful memory of the gallant men of

 "D" Company, Queen's Own Rifles, who on June 11, 1944, met and stopped the

 "Into the Valley of Death."
 May we always remember.—Comrade.

EDMUNDS—In loving memory of my dear wife, Elsie, who passed away June 11, 1949.
 Two years have passed and gone
 Since one we loved so well
 Was taken from our home on earth

 May wither and decay,
 But the love of her who sleeps beneath
 Shall never fade away.

Hart House For Women

The attractively furnished library at Falconer Hall has been named after Margaret Eaton, late wife of the founder of the T. Eaton Co.

University of Toronto co-eds have at last realized a dream almost as old as the university itself—a Hart House for women.

Named Falconer Hall after the late Sir Robert Falconer, former U. of T. president, the female Hart House won't be quite as snooty toward the opposite sex as the male one has been. Men will be allowed inside its doors for social functions, and when the gymnasium and swimming pool are completed at the rear of the building some time in 1934, mixed sports will be permitted.

Once the E. R. Wood estate, Falconer Hall was for many years Wymillwood Residence for Victoria College co-eds, but when it was moved to the opposite side of Queen's Park this spring, the building was taken over by the university for recreational facilities for its women students.

LIBRARY

The spacious, 40-room house has been completely refurnished and partially redecorated. There are four large reception rooms on the main floor and a library and reading room, which has been named after the late Margaret Eaton, wife of the founder of the T. Eaton Co. These rooms have been furnished and endowed by the Eaton Co., and are stocked with the handsomely bound books that comprised the library at the School of Physical and Health Education, 415 Yonge st.

Physical education classes are held in a lecture room on the ground floor with a seating capacity of 100, while a smaller lecture room upstairs seats 38. When the gymnasium and swimming pool are added, the entire physical education school will be moved to Falconer Hall, where its business offices are already located.

The third floor has accommodations for 12 graduate students which are furnished in the latest style. There are also quarters for the hostess, Mrs. Leah MacKenzie, and for the don, Miss Lakshmi Rao, a cousin of the U.N.'s Sir Benegal Rao, who is studying post-graduate work at the School of Hygiene.

FORMAL OPENING

Mrs. Grant Marriott, assistant to the dean of women at University College, has been in charge of the furnishing and redecorating, which was begun in June. About 30 functions have already been held in the building and the co-eds have been using it constantly for parties and meetings. A dining hall on the main floor will seat about 80 and there is a large, fully equipped kitchen and a small kitchenette where the girls can make snacks.

Despite the hum of activity that has been surrounding Falconer Hall for the past few months, it won't be formally opened until tomorrow afternoon, when Dr. Sidney Smith will officiate. A reception will be held following the ceremony.

Child's Eyes

By FRANCIS L. ILS, M.D., and LOUISE S. Louise, age seven, told her mother she, and that print blurred when she was much concerned, brought out the best eye. An eye examination showed both eyes to be better than 20/20 vision, which indicates distance.

How could the child's eyes be troubling her when both were healthy and had better than 20/20 vision? For another two years, Louise went on reading with blurred vision and complained about not seeing clearly.

Another eye specialist was sought out, and his report was much the same as that of the first. There were no errors in the vision that needed correcting; in fact she saw better than most people do. It seemed that Louise was destined to go through childhood making complaints about her eyes for which there was no justification.

PERFORMANCE TESTS

At ten years of age, Louise was seen at the Genet Institute. Part of our testing procedure includes a series of visual performance tests to determine the child's skill in using her eyes together and separately.

Some of the tests were similar to those she had been given on previous examinations at seven and nine years of age. And, to be sure, she showed better than normal vision at distance—20/15, to be exact. There was no error in the eyes which suggested that glasses would help for distance vision.

BEAUTY AND YOU

The Worst Kind Of Heel

By MARIAN MATTHEWS

When you get home from work one of the first things you do is change your shoes—to another pair or to comfortable slippers. But what about those shoes you wear on the job? Do they cramp your toes and leg muscles until you not only feel but look irritable? Time then to make a few changes.

For business, wear the lowest heel height permitted by your particular job environment and the height that is the ideal one for you! Of course, if yours is a glamor job where high heels leg muscles as well. For example, there's the "stenographer's stance," a habit of hooking feet in back of their legs. If you do this all day, you will shorten calf muscles and even help to distort arch.
